Description of the Course:

This intermediate-level course provides an overview of Australian screen media, including film and television. An introduction to the organisation and development of Australian screen industries is provided. Screen productions, including films and television programs, are studied both as texts and in relation to their contexts. The course explores contemporary examples and other significant developments in Australian screen media by analysing screen works in relation to cultural debates and key themes. Course content encompasses fiction and non-fiction, and diversity in terms of gender, class and ethnicity, including Indigenous screen production. The course fosters understanding of Australia's relationship to the international screen industry by introducing students to cultural, social and economic contexts in which Australian industries operate.

Grade Scheme: Graded (HD, D, C, P, MF, F, XF)

Supplementary Assessment: Yes

Where supplementary assessment is available a student must have failed overall in the course but gained a final mark of 45 per cent or above and submitted all major assessment tasks.
