Description of the Unit:

This unit introduces students to the foundations of sport policy development and how it has evolved in international and national sport federations. The unit illustrates the contrasting approaches toward sport policy implemented by international and national sport federations and the influence of government. The unit aims to build students' knowledge and skill to critically review and explain the impact of sport policies implemented by varying international and national sport federations. Unit content will cover the role of governments' involvement and influence in sport policy, the formulation and implementation of sport policy within national sport federations and how different political ideologies influence national sport policies.
