Description of the Course:
This course critically examines the characteristics of war, its causes, consequences, and the transformative effects of war and peace on nations and people throughout history. Beginning with an introduction to key theories, the course examines various conflicts and their legacies, dating from the early modern period to the twentieth century including wars of religion, territorial aggression, ideological war, national liberation, and civil wars. Students will explore mechanisms for conflict resolution such as the League of Nations and the United Nations as well as gaining an advanced understanding of the dynamics of political systems throughout history. Through engaging with a wide variety of primary and secondary sources, students will develop an advanced knowledge of the ways that war and peace are practiced, theorised, experienced and commemorated according to a variety of perspectives.

Grade Scheme: Graded (HD, D, C, etc.)

Placement Component: No

Supplementary Assessment: Yes

Where supplementary assessment is available a student must have failed overall in the course but gained a final mark of 45 per cent or above and submitted all major assessment tasks.
