Course Outline

PHIGL2205 ASIAN PHILOSOPHIES

Course Content:

This course is designed to function as an introduction to four of the major traditions in Asian philosophy (Hinduism, Buddhism, Taoism and Confucianism), giving students a basic level of cultural literacy in relation to Asian thought which can be used in other academic disciplines. Students will be introduced to the key ideas and philosophical concepts in each of these traditions through readings from both primary and secondary texts. Non-philosophical texts such as poetry, short fiction and visual media may also be used to elucidate philosophical ideas. Examining the domains of metaphysics, epistemology, and ethics, the course explores conceptions of reality, theories of knowledge, systems of ethical relationships and beliefs about human nature, and the role of philosophy in human affairs.

The course also poses important methodological questions in relation to approaching the thought of Asia from a Western perspective, including discussion of the different expectations and ideas connected with the term 'philosophy' in Eastern and Western cultures, and the complex relationships holding between philosophy and religion in both the East and the West.

Values and Graduate Attributes:

Values:

- V1. Develop the capacity to see philosophical problems within their cultural contexts.
- V2. Recognise and respect the variety of perspectives on and critical approaches to philosophical positions.
- V3. Develop a critical awareness of methodological problems associated with the study of other cultures and philosophical traditions.
- V4. Respect for the philosophical ideals of clarity and coherence, and for the procedures of disciplined philosophical argumentation.
