Description of the Course:
This course provides a sociological perspective on families, relationships and intimate life. It explores a diverse range of theoretical perspectives, situating families in their historical and cultural contexts. It covers all of the key stages in the life course including childhood, youth, partnering, parenting, and ageing, and critiques the positives and negatives of family life including intimacy and violence. The course examines relationships beyond notions of family, heterosexuality, coupledom, and cohabitation. It examines diversity in families/relationships, separation and divorce, marriage, and de facto relationships, and explores the impact on society of transnational families, surrogacy, and assisted reproductive technologies.

Graduate Attributes

The Federation University FedUni graduate attributes (GA) are entrenched in the Higher Education Graduate Attributes Policy (LT1228). FedUni graduates develop these graduate attributes through their engagement in explicit learning and teaching and assessment tasks that are embedded in all FedUni programs. Graduate attribute attainment typically follows an incremental development process mapped through program progression. One or more graduate attributes must be evident in the specified learning outcomes and assessment for each FedUni course, and all attributes must be directly assessed in each program.
